
Mess Master and the Traveling Trash!
A Pick It Up Seattle Story
By Tricia Tomlinson
One person.
One piece.
One better place.

Created and written by

Tricia Tomlinson

© 2026 Tricia Tomlinson. All rights reserved.

Pick It Up Seattle

One person. One piece. One better place.

Imagine... if every person left every place better than they found it.

That's the idea behind Pick It Up Together.

Pick It Up Together is a community movement built around one simple belief: small actions matter. Picking up one piece of litter, sharing a cleanup, recognizing someone who helped, discovering something beautiful in our community, or inspiring someone else to join in — every small act helps make our world a little better.

Our website is a place to celebrate those actions and the people behind them. You can share cleanups and before-and-after photos, discover community events, leave thank-you notes, explore Scenic Discoveries, read stories, and find simple ways to take part.

Because creating a cleaner, brighter place doesn't have to begin with something big.

It can begin with one person, one piece, and one better place.

PickItUpTogether.org

WHOOSH!

A wrapper smacked the classroom window.
"Someone's knocking," said Bravo Belle.
"With no hands?" asked Outwit Oliver.

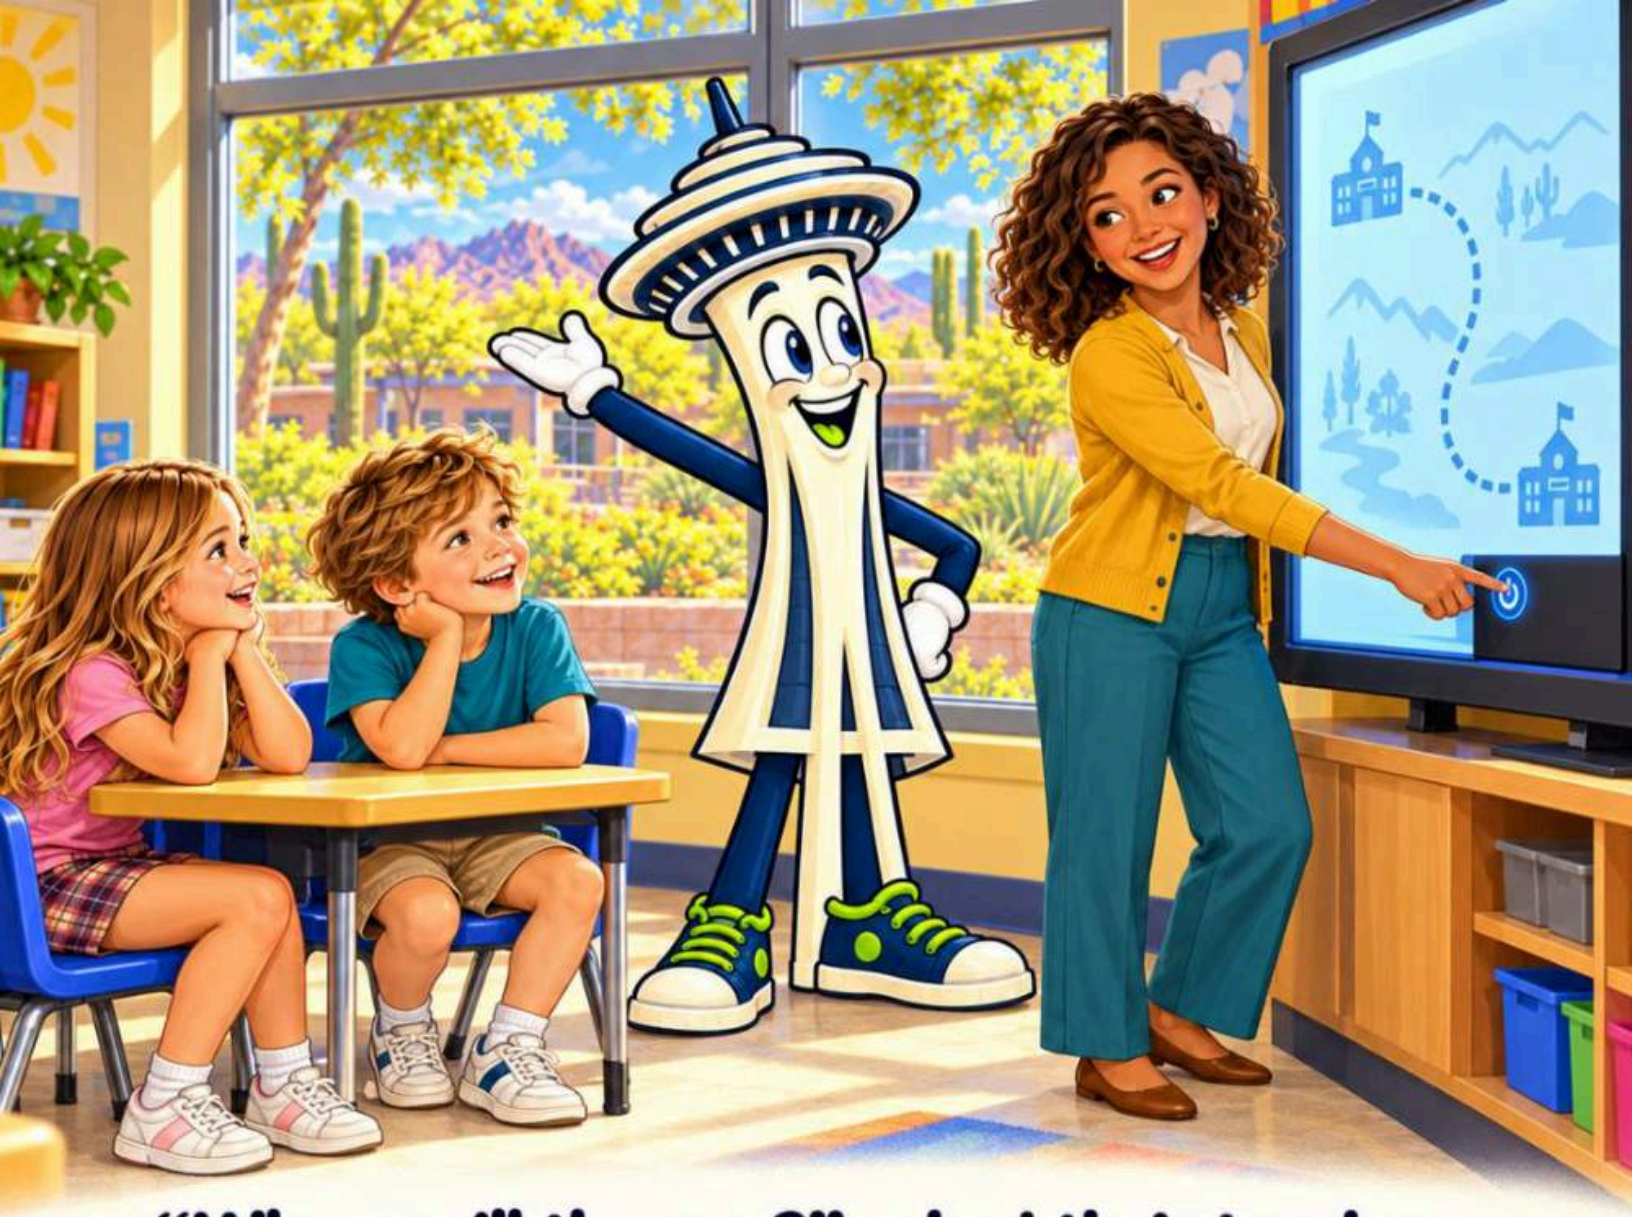

Mess Master pressed his nose to the glass.
Outside lay a wrapper, a paper cup,
and a crumpled bag.
“Your friends are here,” said Brave Beau.

The bag puffed up.
The cup rolled.
The wrapper cartwheeled.
"Your friends need manners," said Ocean Olivia.

Ocean Olivia pointed at the litter.
"Those aren't my friends!"
"Good," said Mess Master.
"They didn't wipe their feet."

"Where will they go?" asked their teacher.
"Hopefully another school," said Mess Master.
"Let's find out."
She switched on the classroom screen.

On the screen, rain swept litter along a Phoenix curb.
"Where's it going?" asked Brave Beau.
"When rain comes, water can move fast,"
said their teacher.

The cup bobbed toward a storm drain.
"A tiny boat!" said Bravo Belle.
"With a terrible captain," said Outwit Oliver.
"Drains can lead to waterways," said their teacher.

Next stop: rainy Seattle!
Leaves and litter gathered over a drain.
"A trash traffic jam!" said Mess Master.
"Litter can block water's path," said their teacher.

In San Francisco, a bag blew toward the bay.
Ocean Olivia leaned forward.
“Fish don’t need shopping bags!”
“Let’s keep them out of the water,”
said Bravo Belle.

Outwit Oliver raised his hand.

"What if we catch litter BEFORE it travels?"

Mess Master stood up.

"Excellent! I shall Command the wind!"

Outside, with their teacher,
Mess Master struck a mighty pose.
"WIND! STOP!"
The wind blew his cape over his head.
"Very commanding," said Outwit Oliver.

Their teacher checked a safe cleanup spot.
Everyone put on gloves.
Brave Beau carried the bags.

"I BROUGHT TWO!"

"One for each hand?" asked Mess Master.

"Garbage and recycling," said Brave Beau.
"First, we check our local guide," said their teacher.
Outwit Oliver nodded.

"Bins have rules. Apparently wind doesn't."

SNIP!

Their teacher's grabber caught the wrapper.

PLOP!

Into the garbage bag it went.

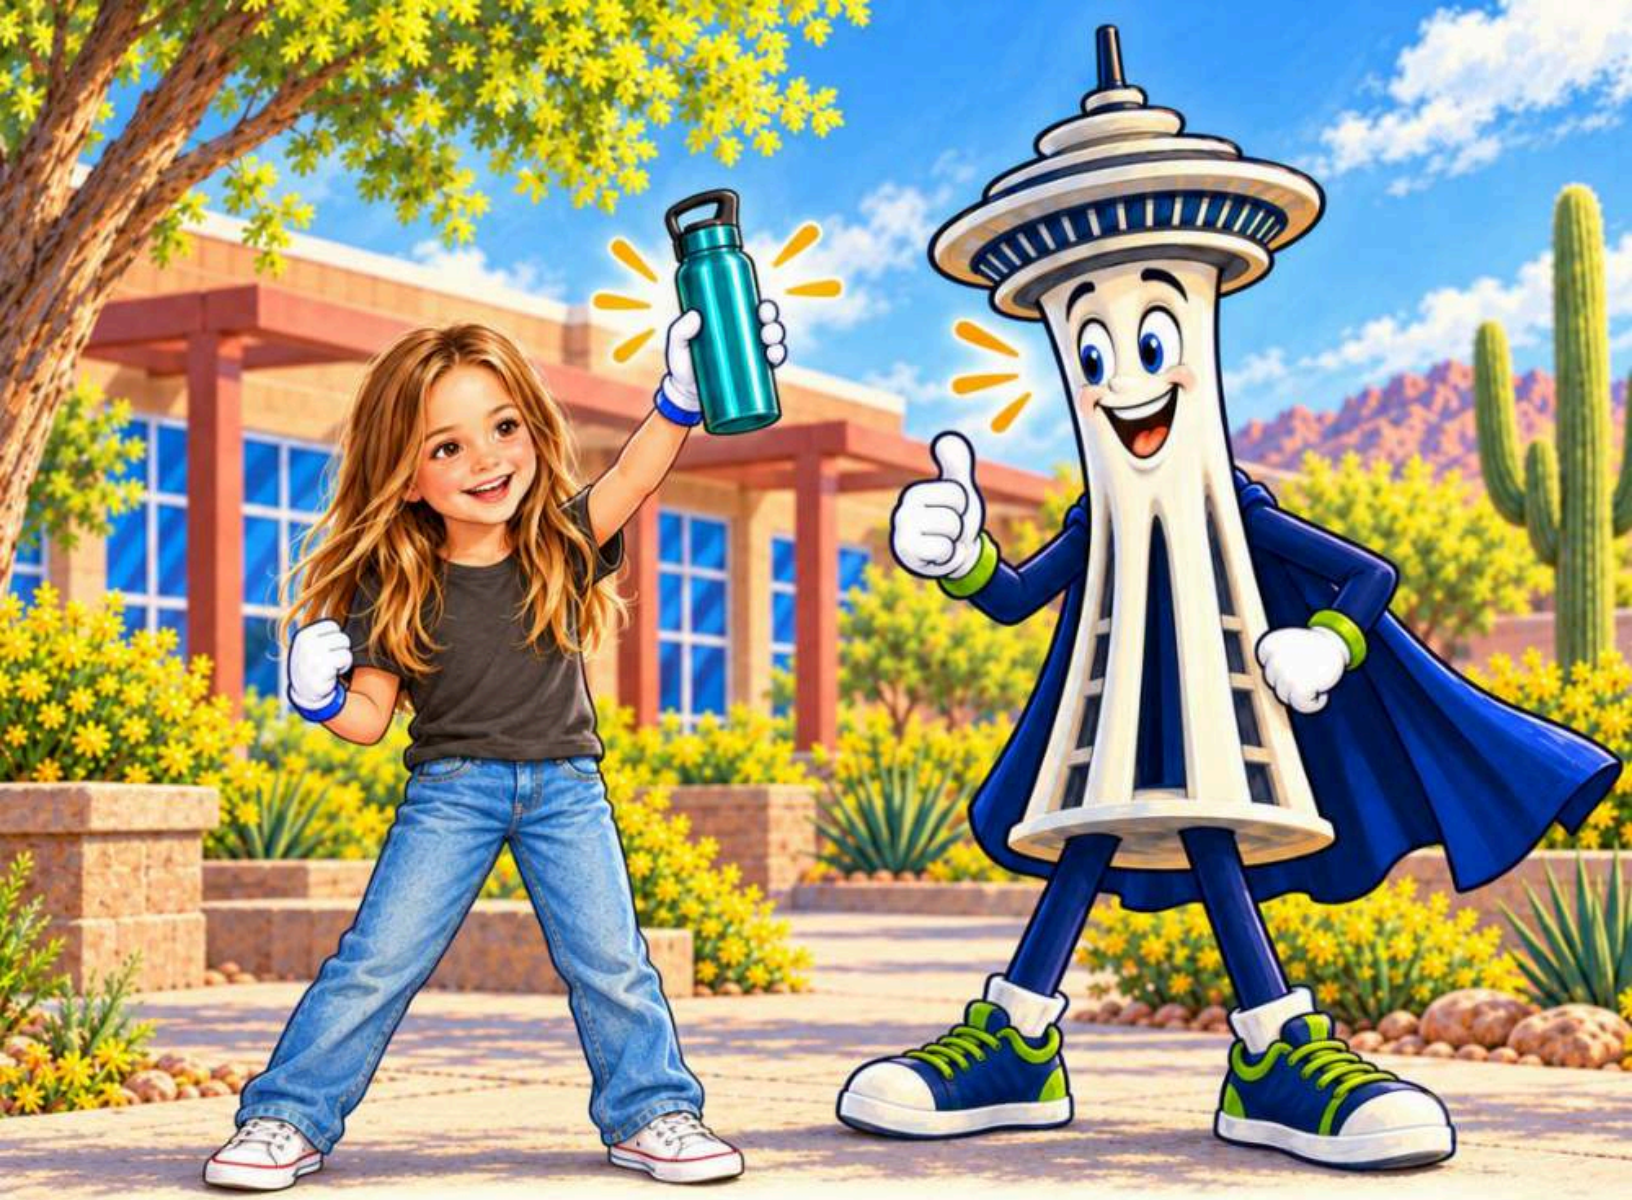

"Your cartwheel career is over,"[17]

said Bravo Belle.

An empty plastic bottle lay beside the bench.
Their teacher checked the guide.
"This bottle is accepted here."
Brave Beau held open the recycling bag.

"Special delivery!"

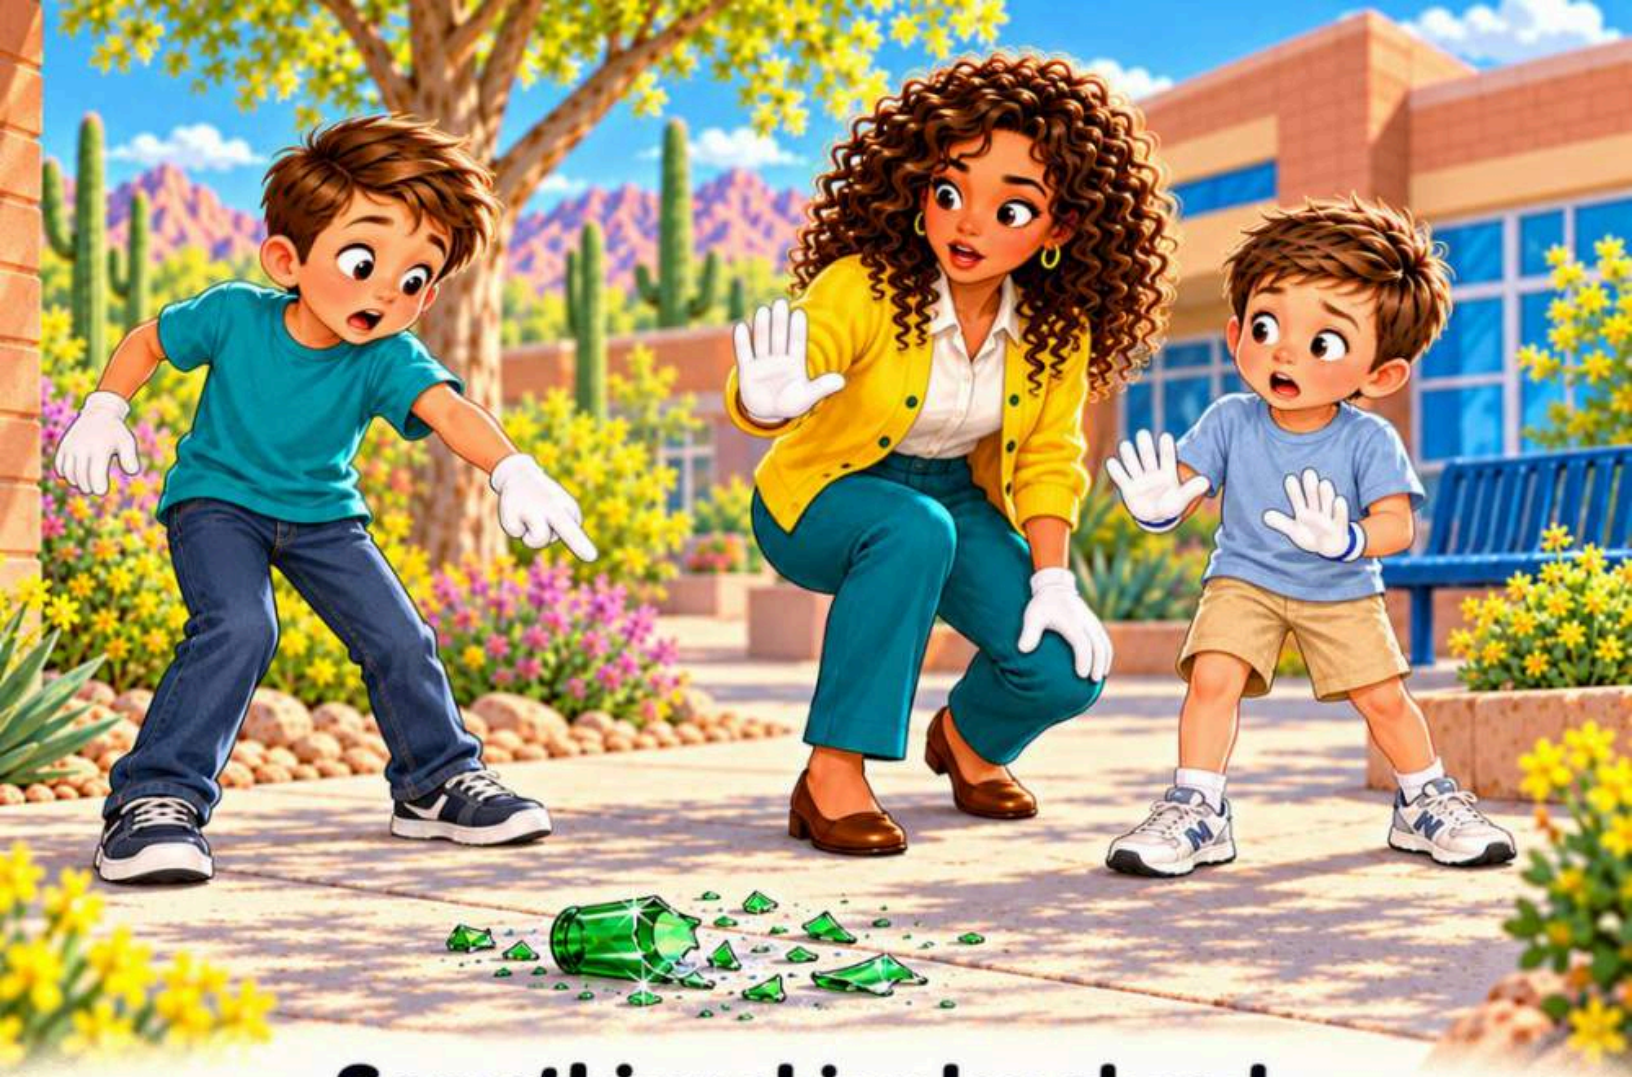

Ocean Olivia raised her reusable water bottle.

"Mine gets refilled, not thrown away!"

Mess Master nodded.

"Smart bottle. Steady job."

Something shiny lay ahead.
"Broken glass," said Outwit Oliver.
Everyone stepped back.
"Leave it. Tell a grown-up,"
said their teacher.
"Gloves aren't magic," added Brave Beau.

Across the road sat a giant dumped chair.
"Too big. Unsafe spot," said Bravo Belle.
Their teacher checked how to report it.
Mess Master sighed.
"I wasn't going to fit that in Beau's bag."

Back inside, everyone washed their hands.
Mess Master admired the bubbles.

"My cleanest victory!"

"Your cape still has a leaf," said Ocean Olivia.

Their teacher showed a photo of the school walkway.

Wrapper. Cup. Bottle. Bag.

"Was that really our path?" asked Bravo Belle.

"Count the litter," said Outwit Oliver.

The next photo showed the very same view.
A clear walkway. A tidy bench.
"Same place?" asked Mess Master.
"Same place. Looks better!" said Brave Beau.

Another photo showed the garden beside the school gate.

Paper scraps hid beneath the flowers.

"Terrible hide-and-seek players," said Ocean Olivia.

"I can see all of them!"

The garden sparkled in the matching after photo.

Mess Master grinned.

“Does the wind get points?”

“Only if it uses a bin,” said Outwit Oliver.

“STREET CHALLENGE!” announced Mess Master.

“What’s that?” asked Ocean Olivia.[27]

“You’ll see in our next adventure!”

They knew how to stop litter from traveling.
One person.
One piece.
One better place.
And they all lived happily ever after.

PICK IT UP SEATTLE

ONE PERSON. ONE PIECE. ONE BETTER CITY.

Small actions can make a big difference.

Thank you for being part of the solution!

Learn more, share your cleanups, and get involved at:

PickItUpTogether.org

One person. One piece. One better place.

Join Mess Master, Olivia, Belle, Oliver, and Beau as they discover that small choices can make a BIG difference!

IN THIS STORY YOU WILL:

- ☑ See the problem
- ☑ Learn the power of one
- ☑ Learn how to contribute
- ☑ Learn how to recycle
- ☑ Learn how to reuse
- ☑ Inspire others

See litter? Pick it up.
Spot a can. Toss it in.
Because every cleaner place starts the same way:
One person. One piece. One better place.

THANK YOU, LITTER HERO!

PICK IT UP TOGETHER

PickItUpTogether.org